I saw the weather be-ginning to change,

The clouds got real dark and the sky filled with rain.

I should have pulled in my sail and headed for home,

I thought I was strong enough to face the storm a-lone.

The wind picked up strength, ripped the sail from the mast!

The waves came in crashing, my boat filled up fast!

I knew I needed to turn back to the safety I'd known

But how in this darkness could I ever find home? could I ever find home?

Suddenly a Light came shining through that dark night,

I stood there staring not be-lieving my eyes!

Could it be a Lighthouse out there?

Could it be that Someone out there

Could see the trouble I'd gotten myself in?

I headed for the Light, just like a Close Friend!
As fast as it started, well the wind all but died
The rain it all stopped and I started to cry
I could see that the keeper had been waiting out-side
A smile on His wet face and His arms open wide!

I jumped from the boat, swam hard for the shore
I never en-joyed seeing anyone more!
He held me tight gave me warm clothes, hot dinner in bed
And sang me to sleep with His lap beneath my head

He said: I'll be your Lighthouse when life rains on you
When even your good days find you sand and blue
All through your ups and your downs, I'll always be a-------round
